

CHATT ...About

A monthly publication of the Chatt Hills Community, a citizen-run news service that connects, informs, and engages friends & neighbors of Chattahoochee Hills, GA.

The Bridge

The Bridge group began in November 2018, when 10 African American men and 10 white men gathered to talk candidly about race. For over a year they met and opened their hearts about life experiences that were the most wounding, and their entrenched beliefs about race. The separation of cultures has begun to soften because these men have simply been talking together about the serious issues of race and spending time together. These talks created a bond of trust and deep friendships which will influence families and our neighbors in incredible ways for many years to come.

Pastor Warren Henry of the Kingdom of God International Ministry invited BOTH Serenbe Interfaith and The Bridge to come to join his congregation (about 250 people)...to talk about what The Bridge has accomplished so far, and how we see our communities blending in the future. The backdrop of the conversation was a bus trip to visit to Legacy Memorial and Museum in Montgomery, Alabama, with the men and their wives. The point was to soften the segregation of culturally held beliefs right here in our own back yard.

The Bridge panel for dialogue was: Joey Mitchell, Alan Merrill, Lionel Brown, Barry Anbinder, David Daniels, George Danusis, Jaceey Sebastian, and Greg Sudmeier, with Rebecca Bradley sharing her testimony after visiting the Legacy Memorial and Museum in Montgomery, Alabama.

Greg Sudmeier, David Daniels, George Danusis, Lionel Brown, Barry Anbinder, Jaceey Sebastian, Alan Merrill and Joey Mitchell.

Pastor Warren Henry of the Kingdom of God International Ministry. Also in attendance were: Rep. Sharon Beasley Teague, Georgia Legislature; Commissioner Joe Carn, Fulton County; Councilmember Khalid, City of South Fulton; Councilmember Alan Merrill, City of Chattahoochee Hills; and Councilmember-elect, Ruby Foster, City of Chattahoochee Hills.

Community Brickworks and their relationship with Mid-West Food Bank in Peachtree City

by Sandy Simbilist

I (and others who staff our pantry) have been fortunate enough to work with Midwest Food Bank on behalf of the Community Brickworks Food Pantry for several years. From the very first time I went to the warehouse and to this day, I am struck by how efficient they are. They take us through the aisles with someone pushing the flat cart and someone taking note of what we take and someone else describing what is available and the quantity allowed. We have been blessed to receive canned goods, occasional fresh produce, bread, meat, frozen items, and so much more. Blankets are often available that we take and give to the fire department for emergencies they may have. While our food pantry is able to stock the basics, because of Midwest we also have extra snack things that our budget wouldn't allow for. We get cookies, pretzels and chips of some kind with each visit. When our patrons visit us they are really happy to get the extra sweet things. They pack up our cars in what seems like a nanosecond and as soon as we are finished and take a moment to express our thankfulness in prayer, we're all packed and ready to go.

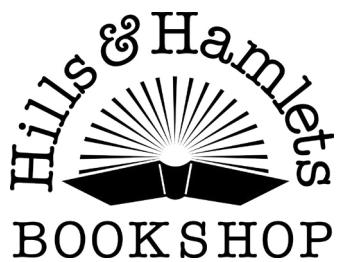

Going to Midwest has become something to look forward to each month. I never know what I will come back with and after working with them for so long we have developed a warm friendship and have some laughs along with the business of receiving the bounty they share with so many.

5 Ways to Support Your Local Independent Bookstore

For those who may not have been following the book industry news over the last few years, there has been a delightful and surprising resurgence of independent bookstores. According to the American Booksellers Association "there has been a 35 percent increase in the number of independent bookstore locations since 2009, existing locations are opening new locations, and established stores are being successfully sold to new owners, often younger owners as a new generation of booksellers enters the industry." And this happened after nearly a decade of declining numbers as the industry struggled to adapt to the onslaught of Amazon and e-commerce. Even with this good news showing the impressive resilience of indie booksellers, we are facing a tough climate. Amazon's share of the print book market expanded from 37% in 2015 to over 50% for the first time in 2019. All this is to say: if you are a lover of independent bookstores, please don't get complacent at the news of our revival, we still have a lot of work to do. It is part of our personal mission to be part of a national movement to revive the independent neighborhood bookstore. To that end, here are some ways you can support your local independent bookstore that you may not have thought about.

1. Get Your Audiobooks From Libro.fm
2. Purchase Gift Cards or Open a House Account
3. Create a Home Library
4. Bring Friends and Out-of-Town Visitors to the Bookstore
5. Foster an "Indies First" Mindset; Special Orders and Pre-Orders

Her eclectic travels and self-taught craftsmanship culminated into a successful line of eco-friendly wedding gowns, Natural Bridal Collection by Morgan Boszilkov. Her gown designs were featured in Brides Magazine, Skirt!, CNN, OneWed, and Style Me Pretty and she even designed a dress for Melissa Rivers, during TLC's "Who are you wearing?" design challenge, and won the competition. Her current ceramic work featuring handmade tiles has been highlighted in the Atlanta Journal Constitution and HGTV.

She experiments with the concept of wabi-sabi and beauty in imperfection, exploring various materials and always experimenting with new techniques. The process of art is an impatient meditation that brings her joy and fulfillment.

Kristin Andreassen is a songwriter and percussive dancer who merges those skills in performances and recordings that are both inventive and deeply rooted in American traditional music. 2015 saw the release of her first studio album Gondolier, with tours supporting Black Prairie, Dawn Landes, Aoife O'Donovan, Mipso and Noam Pikelny. Her debut record Kiss Me Hello included the award-winning "Crayola Doesn't Make a Color for Your Eyes" which went to #1 on kids' radio and has been covered by dozens of artists ranging from Tyne Daly to high school marching bands.

While she's best known for her smart and emotive original lyrics, Kristin got her start in traditional music – she played guitar and fiddle with the groundbreaking string band Uncle Earl (w/ Abigail Washburn, Rayna Gellert & KC Groves) and danced with the Appalachian clogging ensemble Footworks. She first turned her attention to songwriting with the "folk noir" vocal trio Sometymes Why (w/ Aoife O'Donovan & Ruth Ungar) where her bandmates lovingly dubbed her "the mistress of metaphor". Kristin has a knack for writing songs that explore the darkest corners of the human experience with a gently deceptive simplicity that rewards close listening.

"What I enjoy most about dance is how it reveals the people behind the movement. In my processes I try to not only introduce dancers to my vocabulary, but also see how I can fit their personalities, their way of moving into my own language. That way the possibilities are multiple, endless and wonderfully varied."

Caleb Caudle

Growing up in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, singer-songwriter Caleb Caudle was raised on rock n' roll and Southern hospitality. Influenced by bands like The Clash and Velvet Underground, Caudle was playing North Carolina's punk rock circuit by the age of 15. Naturally, his music matured with his age and he became more lyrically driven, adopting a love for music history and collecting vinyl.

In 2012, he decided to quit his day job and focus solely on music—seven years and four albums later, Caudle is gaining the traction he deserves. He was recently dubbed one of “10 New Country Artists You Need To Know” by Rolling Stone. He’s played Willie Nelson’s Luck Reunion, Nashville’s famed AmericanaFest multiple times, showcased to a sold out crowd at AmericanaFest UK in London, and has just returned from his Scandinavian tour. “Borrowed Smiles” was featured on the 2017 dramatic season finale of CMT’s Nashville and “Crushed Coins” was featured on Netflix’s The Ranch in 2018.

In 2019, he’s not slowing down. Touring over 150 dates per year, Caleb stays busy on the road sharing the stage with John Paul White, Ray Wylie Hubbard, Elizabeth Cook, Lera Lynn, Drivin’ N Cryin’, Courtney Marie Andrews, Corb Lund, Aaron Lee Tasjan, and The War & Treaty. Caleb currently resides in Nashville, TN.

Leave the big audience and wine behind. Take part in our dynamic, limited-seating Saturday Seminars.

THE ANATOMY OF A POEM

PROFESSOR CHAD DAVIDSON

How does poetry mean? In what ways do form and language work together in a poem for striking effect? We will discuss a handful of poems, both contemporary and classic, in our quest to unpack some of the reasons why poetry continues to scare us, and maybe why it should. Copies of former Poet Laureate Robert Pinsky's helpful guide, The Sounds of Poetry, will be given to all participants.

- Hospice care patients are not exempt but general care must remain the responsibility of the hospice care provider.
