City of Hudson
Request for Proposals - Comprehensive Plan
June 2023

A. Purpose
The City of Hudson seeks proposals from qualified consultants to facilitate a thorough community planning process and create a thoughtful and innovative Comprehensive Plan. The Comprehensive Plan will focus on the City’s future with a strong emphasis on land use, inclusive development, and carbon neutrality.

B. Background
The City of Hudson is a city of about 6,000 people located along the Hudson River in Columbia County, NY. The City of Hudson has an urban, walkable footprint located in a beautiful rural area. Hudson is geographically small, only 2.2 square miles, which has led to its compact development. Hudson is situated in a rural county, between the Catskill Mountains to the west and the Berkshire Mountains to the east, but New York City can be reached in two hours by train or car, and Albany in less than an hour.

The City of Hudson has experienced significant demographic change in a short period of time. The City has lost about half its population since the 1990s. From about 1990 to the early 2000s, the City faced issues of an aging housing stock and a loss of industrial jobs. However, the City was fairly affordable and home to vibrant communities and families.

The City’s last Comprehensive Plan was adopted in 2002. Its first goal was “Protect the Traditional Character of Hudson’s Downtown and Neighborhoods,” with objectives focused on historic preservation and design. The primacy of this goal reflects the priorities of the groups whose voices were most represented in the last planning process. The intact historic architecture of Hudson is a community asset; however, this has also led to residential and commercial gentrification over the last two decades that have in turn led to increased housing expenses and displacement of residents. Hudson has historically had an Area Median Income roughly 50% lower than that of Columbia County. While the median income has been rising in the area, this has also been at the expense of residents who had to move out. Hudson is a majority renter city, so renters feel the squeeze of increased prices first, as well as the lack of housing units due to conversion to short-term rentals or vacation homes. The pandemic only heightened this trend, especially as Hudson is located on the Amtrak line; in 2021 The New York Times cited Hudson as the place that experienced the largest percentage of net incoming residents in the country due to the pandemic. This demographic shift in a short period of time has led to conflicting visions of how the City should develop.

In addition to housing and affordability, accessibility remains a significant challenge to the city and its administration. In October 2019, the City entered into a settlement agreement with the Department of Justice regarding Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) noncompliance identified on several municipal properties and programs, which in its terms included a mandate to resolve a large portion of noncompliant sidewalks and curb cuts that serve to connect people to public services. While a significant number of items within the settlement have been addressed, capital improvements focusing on accessibility of public facilities have taken longer to execute than the initial settlement allowed. While negotiating an extension to this settlement with the DOJ, the City agreed to establish a Sidewalk Improvement District program to better facilitate the City’s ability to improve pedestrian connectivity.
Hudson’s main industries are healthcare and tourism. Columbia Memorial Hospital, the County’s largest employer, is located in Hudson. Hudson City School District, located in Hudson but covering several municipalities, is another large employer. While Hudson used to have several large industrial employers, these have largely closed over the years. Warren Street, Hudson’s one-mile active commercial corridor, is home to many small businesses, primarily comprising of restaurants and retailers of luxury goods, antiques, and fine art. Hudson has seen an increase in hotels and short-term rentals over the past few years, which has brought business to the City but has also contributed to the increase in housing costs.

The changes in demographics, key industries, and cost of living have affected our residents in different ways- some benefitting, but others facing housing and employment challenges. It is our hope that the act of creating this Comprehensive Plan can provide an opportunity for community members to create a shared vision for the City’s future.

Although it has been almost two decades since the City created its last Comprehensive Plan, the City and community have created many other plans in the interim. The new Comprehensive Plan should incorporate these plans recently created by the City and residents rather than replace them. These recent plans include:

- Parking Study, 2022
- Affordable Housing Policies, 2022
- Tree Inventory & Community Forest Management Plan, 2022
- Hudson Waterfront Climate-Adaptive Design, 2022
- Affordable Housing Development Plan, 2021
- Truck Route Traffic Study, 2021
- Bridge District Connectivity Plan, 2021
- Natural Resource and Open Space Inventory, 2019
- Strategic Housing Action Plan, 2018

Other previous plans and studies to consider include:

- ADA Sidewalks Audit, 2021
- Hudson Community Resilience Building Workshop-Findings, 2017
- Climate Summary, 2016
- Hudson Riverfront BOA Pre-Nomination Study, 2015
- Local Waterfront Revitalization Plan, 2011
- Comprehensive Plan, 2002

C. Key Topic Areas

Future Land Use Map and Zoning: The Plan must include a Future Land Use Map with an illustrated land use guide. The City is seeking to use this FLUM as a guide to create new zoning that is more flexible, modern, and regulates form more than use. The FLUM included in this Plan should be easily implementable as a zoning code.

Sustainability and Resiliency: The City of Hudson is committed to ending its reliance on fossil fuels and strives to improve resilience to the effects of climate change by aligning with the goals of the Paris Agreement. The Plan should incorporate the recommendations from previous plans and efforts and the work of Hudson’s very active Conservation Advisory Council and other local environmental organizations and respond to the standards recommended by NYS Climate Smart Communities program and the NY Climate Leadership and Community Protection Act. The Plan should provide implementable recommendations to eliminate greenhouse gas emissions, increase community resilience to the effects of climate change, improve air quality, reduce energy support, increase accessibility to renewable energy, and generally support Smart Growth goals. This section of the Plan may effectively be considered a Climate Action Plan scaled to Hudson and should include sections on green infrastructure and best practices for parking lot design and the design and heating and cooling of new development. A key component of this Plan is advancing the City’s Brownfields goals.

Utilities, Infrastructure, and Capital Facilities: The state and capacity of the City’s infrastructure should be a factor in creating a realistic and implementable Comprehensive Plan. Coordination will be needed with the Public Works Department to ensure the land use and development recommendations can be supported.

Transportation: The Plan should utilize the recommendations from the recent Truck Study, Parking Study, and Hudson Connectivity projects and add recommendations for implementing a cohesive network of Complete Streets. Consideration should also be given to address how development may affect motorized transportation, transit needs, and emerging trends like electric vehicles, ridesharing services, etc.

Parks, Recreation, and Open Spaces: The Plan should consider the recent and ongoing efforts to improve local parks and increase tree cover. The Plan should provide recommendations for how to holistically manage the long-term maintenance of these projects and how to advance goals in protecting, preserving, and resuscitating the City’s natural resources. The Plan should identify existing public lands for preservation and any properties where new public open spaces may be added feasibly, especially considering the connectivity of existing park or recreation trails.

Housing: The City has several initiatives in progress to preserve and increase housing affordability. The Plan should provide recommendations for preserving and creating housing affordable to all income bands that build upon the City’s current work and recent housing plans, and consider how forecasted demographic change, the redevelopment of the Hudson Housing Authority, and the other Key Topic Areas of the Plan like economic development, infrastructure, transportation, and resiliency interplay with the City’s housing goals.

Economic Development: The Plan should provide an Economic Development Plan that: analyzes the City’s economic role in the region, including potential targeted industries; provides an equity analysis focused on the economic well-being of the City’s residents, especially those in the low-income brackets; assesses displacement and gentrification risks from the perspective of employers and employees; considers changes in consumer and workplace behaviors; evaluates the health and challenges facing small businesses; evaluates best practices for marijuana sales and/or production; and considers the lack of employees for key industries like healthcare, childcare, and tourism and the lack of employment opportunities that provide the wages needed to live in this area.

Community Culture and Urban Design: The Plan should include the consensus reached in the public engagement phase that identifies the overall community vision and how that relates to Hudson’s community character. The Plan should explore what makes Hudson unique and incorporate the culture and vision of all the citizens of Hudson.
Accessibility: In all Topic Areas of the Plan and throughout the process of community engagement and development of the Plan, attentiveness to all forms of accessibility must be maintained. The Plan should take into consideration existing facility conditions and plans related to improved accessibility for public services.

Implementation Plan and Fiscal Responsibility: The City desires for this planning document to serve as a regular reference guide for City staff, officials, partner organizations, and community. Plan recommendations should identify short-, mid-, and long-term actions and implementation strategies that consider the size and capacity of City staff and partners and the fiscal capacity and responsibility of the City.

E. Scope of Work

The selected Consultant Team is expected to provide a wide range of services related to the Plan. The intent of the Scope of Work is to serve as a framework which the Consultant Team can use to develop a more detailed scope of services based on their professional expertise, knowledge, and unique ideas. The final Scope of Work will be developed in collaboration with the selected Consultant Team and City staff prior to contract approval.

1. Existing Conditions Assessment: The Consultant Team should propose an approach to analyze existing planning and land use conditions in the City. The existing conditions should include an examination of relevant plans and policies, demographics and market influences, current land use and zoning, transportation, housing, the natural environment, recreation and tourism opportunities, community services, fiscal health, and infrastructure. Historic trends, emerging issues, and impact and resulting externalities of City policies, plans, and regulations should be assessed. The Plan should include complete datasets of demographics, land use patterns, transportation networks, potential population changes, housing market changes and projections, and economic changes. The Consultant Team should work with City staff and officials to identify key stakeholders and a steering committee to reach out during the public and stakeholder engagement process.

2. Public and Stakeholder Engagement: The Consultant Team should include a robust plan for public engagement in their proposal that can attract voices not typically heard in the comprehensive planning process. Potential public engagement activities should be multifaceted, unique, and provide outreach to key stakeholders and the broader community. Below is a list of desired means of engagement:

- Stakeholder interviews
- Focus group meetings
- A statistically-valid survey
- An interactive website
- Social media
- Pop-ups
- Charrettes or workshops
- Open houses
- Project branding

The City is interested in unique ways to present information to the community and obtain feedback such as visual preference surveys, interactive planning sessions and using various forms of media that are graphically based. Public engagement should include outreach in Spanish and Bengali and should balance input from individuals who tend to dominate public input in traditional settings with those who historically do not participate.

3. Establishment of Vision & Goals: Based on community input and other factors, the Consultant Team should develop a consensus-based vision for the future of Hudson, as well as an interdepartmental framework of achievable goals, strategies, and policies to support the vision.

4. Key Recommendations: The Consultant Team should be prepared to discuss the plan’s expected recommendations around the midpoint of the project, prior to the serious preparation of the draft plan. The goal is to gather the City’s feedback on key recommendations before significant resources are spent drafting the plan. The key recommendations should utilize the content of the City’s recent plans rather than duplicate.

5. Draft Plan: Using all input obtained in the data gathering, public engagement, and review of key recommendations, a draft plan should be developed that addresses the Key Topic Areas, including the Future Land Use Map and Zoning Code Principals. The Zoning Code Principals are not intended to be codified verbatim in the new Zoning Code but instead is intended to provide the consultant a foundation from which to use to inform the complete rewrite and map.

The Consultant Team has flexibility in the format and length of the draft plan but is not expected to provide a full plan outline in their proposal. Respondents should give some indication of the types of recommendations that are expected to be made regarding the topics that were identified as priorities in this RFP. The draft plan should also address implementation, including actions which should be taken in the near future to advance its recommendations. Respondents should assume that several meetings would be necessary to review the draft plan, including an initial presentation to City Staff, an informational open house, and presentations to the steering committee, Planning Board, and the City Council.

6. Final Plan: The Consultant Team should prepare a final plan based on comments made regarding the draft plan by City staff and officials, stakeholders, and others. The Common Council will review and adopt the final plan. The Plan will include all deliverables listed in Section F. Respondents should assume that a series of meetings would be necessary, including an initial presentation to City Staff, an informational open house, a formal public hearing, and presentations to the steering committee, Common Council, Planning Board, and Conservation Advisory Council.

F. Deliverables

The Selected Consultant Team must provide, at a minimum, the following deliverables and they must be specified in the proposal:
1. A complete final draft of the Comprehensive Plan ready for adoption by the City, including all exhibits and attachments;
2. Electronic copy of the plan in an interactive PDF; all maps should be provided in PDF form and layers in shapefiles or similar format acceptable to the City;
