

From: bill huston

Sent: Friday, October 4, 2024 6:05 PM

To: Lola Roberts <lola.roberts@cityofhudson.org>; Mohammed Rony <mohammed.rony@cityofhudson.org>; Gary Purnhagen <gary.purnhagen@cityofhudson.org>; Dominic Merante <dominic.merante@cityofhudson.org>; Margaret Morris <margaret.morris@cityofhudson.org>; Shershah Mizan <shershah.mizan@cityofhudson.org>; Vicky Daskaloudi <vicky.daskaloudi@cityofhudson.org>; Rich Volo <richvolo@cityofhudson.org>; Justin Weaver <mayoralaide@cityofhudson.org>; Tom DePietro <councilpres@cityofhudson.org>; Executive Referral NY Upstate <executivereferralnyupstate@nationalgrid.com>; LaBombard, David (DPS) <david.labombard@dps.ny.gov>

Subject: Re: National Grid sucks. Does Rob Perry care?

On Fri, Oct 4, 2024 at 6:04 PM bill huston <huston.bill@gmail.com> wrote:

National Grid began their gas pipe replacement work in the 300 block of State Street in early May, 5 months ago.

They were not working there Thursday, nor today, Friday, two days without rain. The crew usually consists of no more than 3 men.

The pictures show what they left for us on Wednesday afternoon that will still be there on Monday morning.

Of course, no one at DPW, including Rob Perry, cares about any of this. If he says that he can't control what National Grid leaves on our sidewalks and in our streets for five days or more and over an entire weekend, he is full of bullshit. But you already knew he's full of bullshit. So full of bullshit.

B I L L

